Mr. King expressed himself as certain that arrangements satisfactory to both companies could be made. Several of the gentlemen Interested are now in West Virginia, on the proposed line, perfecting arrangements looking to the developement of the resources of the country in connection with the road. It has not been definitely decided whether the road will be a narrow or standard guage, but the latter will probably be built to conform with the gauge of the Southern.

Devotions at the Cathedral

A large congregation assembled at the Cathedral last evening. In addition to the usual devotion a sermon was preached by Rev. Father Boutlou, of Clarksburg, W. Va., who spoke for about half as houron the doctrine of "Than ubstantiation." He treated the subject in an sole manner and was attentively listened to by those present.

subject in an sole manner and was attentively listened to by those present.

To-day being Good Friday there will be three services at the Cathedral. The morning services will commence at 9 o'clock. After the lessons follows the reading of the Passion as recorded by St. John. Then the Cross is uncovered and venerated, after which there is a procession of the Blessed Sacrament from the Repository to the High Altar, where Mass of the Presanctified is said. Blahop Kain will officiate at this service. At 2.30 r. M. there will be the devotion known as the Stations of the Cross. At 7.30 r. M. after singing of the Lamentations, a sermon on the Passion will be preached by Rev. Father McElligott.

A DERATE of the proposition, "Resolved, That women's rights should be equal to those of men," took place at Frof. J. M. Frasher's Business College yesterday. The debaters were, affirmative, Miss Sadie McCormick, A. T. Karr and Charles Bowers; negative, Miss Maggie Defreey, Wilham Clemens and D. A. Karr. On both sides the ladies carried off the honors, leaving the gentleman far behind, and the judges decided in the affirmative. Miss McCormick's arguments were well put and hard to combat. that was given, it was fully as elegant in all the details and as enjoyable as the first, if not more so, for there was no crush and a greater air of sociability prevailed. The ladies found last evening's hop a pleasant affair because they did not have their dresses disarranged in a jaw and, and besides they had a better opportunity to show to an advantage the handsome costumes they wore.

Dancing was commenced about 9 o'clock, the music being furnished by the full Opera House Orchestra, under the leadership of Prof. Selbert. The dancing programme was composed of sixteen numbers. The music was a feature of last evening's pleasures; it was all new and taken mostly from late operas. The programmes themselves were handsome souveniers. At 12 o'clock supper was served, the caterer being Mr. Osbourne, of Mt. Belleview. It is needless to say that it was delicious.

The master of ceremonies was again Mr. Buckman, and his corps of assistants was composed of the following gentlemen: Messra. Lou Swabacker, Alf. Rheinstrom, Mal. Gutman and Lou Siedenbach. Here was a commentary on the difference between the working classes in "Merrie" free-trade England and young America, whose industries have so outstripped those of the mother country that the standard English nails would disgrace a new feeder in one of the Wheeling mills. This statement was made weaterday, and is borne out and they will begin to creep up on the American nail makers."

The idea of women working in nail mills seemed to strike with peculiar force the workmen here, particularly the feeders, who as a class are boys or young men. "It would be funny if it didn't seem so hard," one man expressively put it.

Mr. Porter rays that in England a skilled nailer, with the sid of his wife and daughter, will only earn net wages to the amount of it? In a week. In this particular is the strongest contrast between the American and foreign laborer. In the mills of this country, the usual "job" of a nailer is four machines, each of which is fed by a man or boy. Some sizes of nails are cut from cold plates, while from "six penny" up they are cut hot. The izes of nails are cut from cold plates, while rom "six penny" up they are cut hot. The tot feeders receive 50 per cent of the price aid by the manufacturer for cutting the nails, the other half going to the nailer. The cold feeders get two fifths of the price of utting their nails and the nailer three-fifths cutting their nails and the naire three-nums. Say a nailer has one machine cutting six-penny nails, one on eight-penny, one on ten-penny and one on twenty-penny, the feeders wages will average about $$5,$$40,$$0,$$11 and $13 a week, in the order the machines are named, and the nailer's receipts from the four machines, will be $$42 for the week. This is, of course a hypothetical case. The average is not so large, though when a

The funeral of the late Dr. G. Schuchardt ook place yesterday morning from his late eatidence on Main street and was very largely stended. The services both at the house and the grave were conducted by Rev. Dr. Schafrancek, pastor of St. John's church. The remains, enclosed in a rich and handsome Schaifaneck, pastor of S. John's church. The remains, enclosed in a rich and handsome casket, were in the large front parlor. All the resons and the large hall were filled with relatives and friends, while a large number remained outside. The services were conducted in terman. A high tribute was paid the deceased and the sad and awful circumstances under which he had met his death deplored. At 11 o'clock the funeral procession started for the grave. The nall bearers were Dr. E. Henig, Dr. C. F. Ulrich, and Messrs. E. C. Stifel, Michael Roth, F. C. Myers and L. Wilhelm. They each carried a handsome bouquet which were thrown in the grave, and on the coffin there rested a large cross composed of choice white flowers. The remains were interred in the burying ground on the farm of the deceased, just above the Laughlin mill, above Martin's burying ground on the farm of the deceased, just above the Laughlin mill, above Marlind ferry, the grave being dng by the side of the one in which the remains of Mrs. Schuchardt lie. Mr. Woods, when the vote for directors was announced to be in order, said that he had been instructed by the Board of County Commissioners to nominate and vote for one of their number as a member of the Board of Directors. He expressed a desire to vote by the cumulative system, but it was the general opinion that this law did not apply to the company, axits charter antedated the passage of the law. Mr. Woods therefore refrained from voting as instructed. Mr. Joseph S. Speidel was the candidate selected by the Board.

After the report of the tellers in the above election, Dr. T. H. Logan and J. M. Beileville, the meeting adjourned.

The Nashville Students had a good audi nuce last night at the M. E. Church. They all dressed in the costumes used by the slave of the South as field hands and cotton pick James Fitton yesterday commenced the work of laying a larger sewer from the Belmont House corner to the river. This sewer will go under the Baltimore & Ohio tracks, and the company sent an officer to stop the work. Capt. R. T. Devries, however, gave orders to let the work proceed. These gutters were choked up last summer for want of sufficient outlet for the water.

The Cleveland & Pittsburgh Life Insurance The Cleveland & Pittaburgh Life Insurance Association at its annual meeting in Pittaburgh, re-elected Morris V. Milier, of Bellaire, President. The choice is highly couplimentary to him, as it was avowedly made because of his peculiar Biness for a presiding officer and the estisfactory manner in which he had discharged allof, his duties. Uriah Venning, formerly of Bellaire, now of Pittaburgh, was made one of the Vice Presidents. The meeting next year will be held at Bellaire.
